

IV&V and QA Solutions

Because IT Matters...

With expanding caseloads and shrinking budgets, delivery of HHS services must rely on technology to bridge the gap. These systems are mission critical and must be responsive and reliable. They have to work.

Quality Matters

HHS systems require a high degree of quality to enable efficient processing of complex and changing program requirements.

Quality must be built into every phase of HHS system design, development and implementation.

Standards Matters

Systems developed in accordance with proven industry standards, including IEEE, PMBOK, ISO, SWEBOK, and COBIT have a higher degree of user acceptance and are easier to maintain than applications built using “home-grown” methodologies.

Independence Matters

Large, complex IT projects have high visibility and can fall prey to “group think” and “too big to fail” mindsets. Having an independent perspective on an IT project’s progress can protect the agency from these deadly conditions.

Experience Matters

SLI is committed to ensuring that HHS IT projects deliver quality systems that achieve their business and technical objectives on-time and on-budget.
